INST 301
Nationalism and the Political Imagination

W 3-5:30
Instructor - Scott Jones

Explores how nations and nationalism inform the ways we make sense of the world around us. Engages critically with classical and contemporary approaches to nationalism and traces the emergence and development of nations and nationalism in various historical contexts such as the Middle East, North Africa, and South Asia. In addition, students will have the opportunity to consider nationalism and the political imagination more broadly in a variety of thematic contexts, from sports to pop culture. Students will also be encouraged to integrate their specific interests into assignments and class activities.
